

Taliya Rizvi is a dynamic advocate for student well-being and leadership development, seeking to make a lasting impact within the medical community. With a multifaceted background spanning various leadership roles, Taliya brings a wealth of experience to her candidacy for Director of Student Affairs within the Canadian Federation of Medical Students (CFMS).

Currently serving as the incoming president of her Medical School council, Taliya is deeply attuned to the needs of medical students and is dedicated to amplifying their voices on a national level. Her tenure as a representative of the Schulich Hippocratic Council Student Affairs Committee has provided her with invaluable insights into the diverse challenges faced by her peers, shaping her commitment to fostering a supportive environment for their success.

Taliya's passion for student advocacy extends beyond the medical sphere, evidenced by her extensive involvement in various student organizations and initiatives. From serving as President of University of Toronto's Operations Smile chapter to holding leadership positions in organizations like UTM Stem Fellowship and Boss Women UTM, Taliya has consistently demonstrated her dedication to empowering her peers and effecting positive change within her community.

Driven by a desire to prioritize student wellness, promote leadership development, and foster a sense of community among medical students, Taliya presents a compelling vision for the future of CFMS. Taliya aims to create a sense of community and support while promoting student well-being, with a goal to nurture and train resilient physicians to elevate healthcare excellence for all Canadians.
