

Bio:

Hi my name is Dixon Pinto (he/him) and I am an incoming third year medical student at the Schulich School of Medicine and Dentistry (Western University). I live, study, and work on Treaty 6 on the traditional lands of the Anishinaabek, Haudenosaunee, Lūnaapéewak, and Attawandaron peoples. I am passionate about 2SLGBQIA+ health and striving for equity by deconstructing barriers that exist for folks coming from marginalized identities using an intersectional approach. In my work I continue to strive to push the status quo with respect to the delivery of equitable healthcare and health policies. Last year, I had the privilege of serving as the Vice President for Equity, Diversity, Inclusion, and Decolonization at my medical school society. I hope to bring forward the skills and knowledge that I learned from that role into my role within the CFMS. Outside of school you will find me exploring new cafes, local theatre, and spending time with my two (soon three) nephews. I look forward to meeting you all and if you would like to connect, I am always open to chat.
