

Open Letter to Refugees From Canadian Medical Students

Drafted by Koray Demir, National Officer of Human Rights and Peace 2015-16, norp@cfms.org

To our newly arrived friends and neighbours,

We, the undersigned, are medical students from around Canada. We work daily with patients in communities all over the country, and will soon be practicing physicians in Canada's hospitals and clinics. As our government prepares to welcome many refugees from areas of conflict, we would like to take a moment to say hello – and reaffirm our commitment to working hard for the wellbeing of you and your loved ones as you begin a new chapter of your lives.

For one, we understand that navigating the healthcare system of a completely new country will be challenging. Still, we hope that you will never hesitate to seek care for yourselves or your families should you need it. When we meet you, we pledge to be patient, understanding and empathetic, such that your experience in the Canadian healthcare system is as positive as possible.

We commit also to acknowledging the particular challenges that have been part of your lives prior to arriving in Canada. We will consider them carefully in speaking with you and in understanding how they may have shaped your health, and how we can play a part in helping you to move forward.

Our role as future physicians does not end at offering care in clinics and hospitals. When we see injustices and inequity in health, we are bound to advocate for better health on a broader level. We will use our voices to ensure that your physical and mental wellbeing are considered priorities for policymakers.

In particular, we understand that the conditions of your daily lives are the most important factors in determining the long-term health of you and your families. We will continue advocating for your access to adequate housing, education and employment, among other social factors that may influence your health.

In this vein, we will reject discriminatory or hateful rhetoric if it arises. Threats to your human rights and dignities are an offense to our core values as medical students and as Canadians. We will stand by you and defend your rights with conviction.

We are eager to do our part such that you feel comfortable, welcome and, most importantly – at home, here in Canada. We hope the years ahead bring you and your families happiness, and we look forward to sharing them with you as healthcare professionals, advocates for health and as neighbours in your communities.

From medical students around the country, welcome to Canada.
